UW-Richland students honored for exemplary work

The best assignments and the University of Wisconsin-Richland students who created them were honored during Convocation held September 11 on campus. The exemplary work of these students is published in the 2009 edition of Quintessence, an annual publication of the best writing and other creative work by UW-Richland students.

Honorees are:

- Lori Brinkley, Richland Center, Lipsha's Love Medicine;
- Stephanie Coggon, Elroy, cover art work entitled: Landscape;
- Cherith Dilley, Blue River, The Ecofeminist View of Vegetarianism;
- Bethany Frank, Richland Center, Comparative Book Review: The Salem Witch Trials;
- Lacy Garman, Hillsboro, The Dea(r)th of Student Responsibility: Bringing Students Back to Reality;
- Roxanne Klubertanz, Lone Rock, Cardiac Misdiagnosis: How and Why;
- Susan Lepro, Verona, Drywall and Lessons;
- Dan McDonough, Sun Prairie, Multiple Sclerosis: Etiology;

- Casandra Baker Molitor, Stoughton, Comparative Book Review: Manhattan Project;
- Katherine Rott, Spring Green, two essays, Edward Abbey vs the Habit of Humanity, and The Primitive Darkness; and
- Rachel Widner, Westby, cover art work entitled: Broken Window.

Faculty nominate assignments they recognize as outstanding and the Quintessence editorial board selects the best of those for publication. Members of the Quintessence Editorial Board are UW-Richland faculty and staff. Co-chairs are Clif Cavanaugh, associate professor of computer science, engineering, physics and astronomy, and Dr. Scott Walter, associate professor of biology. Members are Marnie Dresser, professor of English; Lisa Behling, Student Services coordinator; and Dr. Aharon Zorea, assistant professor of history.
